Namaste (Namaskar)! This is the Indian traditional way of greeting an individual or a group. Welcome to self-guided Temple tour.

A Temple or Devalaya is a place of worship. Deva means God and Alaya is House. Several smaller Temples or Sanmudhanams are structured within the main Temple. A traditional Hindu Temple is built based on the Agamas, which are the Holy Scriptures on architecture. Agamas also provide guidelines for the conduct of worship (prayer). The Hindu Temple and Cultural Society of USA Inc. (HTCS) was established in September of 1989. Our Temple was designed by Indian Temple Architects (Sthapati) according to ancient Indian Temple building codes and was inaugurated (Kumbabhishekam) in 1998.
You are going to enter one of the most Beautiful Hindu temples in North America. Now you are standing close to a tall brass cased wooden pillar. This is called the Dhwajasthambham or the flag staff of our Temple. Most Hindu Temples have a Dhwajasthambham in front. Temple worship starts from this point.

You may see worshippers touching this pillar. Some may go around this one to three times. Some men place their body flat on the ground in front of this pillar. Prostration on the floor is called Sasthanga Namaskara. Women also do similar prostration on the floor in a bent way without placing their whole body on the floor. This symbolizes complete surrender of ones ego in veneration of the Lord. These are traditional ways of offering one’s respect to God. Some may place their palms and fingers of both the hands together, hold the hands close to the chest, and meditate on God. This is a very common way of offering respect to God or when you greet someone. When you go into the Temple, you will see more worshippers doing this.

From this point (Dhwajasthambham) you also notice an elevated walkway around the Temple. This is called the Prakaram. This is also a traditional part of Hindu Temples. Worshippers walk around the temple on the Prakaram (in the clockwise direction) and offer prayers to God. One can go around as many times as they wish. This process is called Pradhakshina.

Are you ready to enter Temple? In front of the Dhwajasthambham you see a tall Beautiful tower with plenty of art work. This is called the Rajagopuram of Temple. The Temple is designed and built following chola style of Temple architecture.

Please go up the wide steps that you see in front and go through the two tall doors (main entrance to the temple). You will notice the Temple office to your left and steps going down to your right. You can use these steps to go down and leave your shoes in the designated area. Some devotees leave their shoes outside the main entrance, when the weather permits. Visitors must remove their shoes before entering the Temple. Some also prefer to wash their feet and hands in the designated area in the Temple basement. When you return to the main floor, standing in front of the temple office facing inside, you will see two more doors, which are normally wide open during Temple worship hours.

As you walk in, you are entering the main prayer area. This point is indicated by an arrow in the floor plan shown in the last page. Devotees coming to our Temple can worship several Deities (Vigrahas)(different manifestations of God). However, Temple priests (who have learned Hindu agamas from religious schools in India) conduct all the religious services to the Deities. The worship includes giving sacred bath (abhishekam), decorating the Deity (Alankaram), chanting Deity’s names / Praising the glory of the God (archana), offering food to the Deity (prasadam) and various other Hindu rites which are openly witnessed by all the devotees. After a Prayer session the priests transfer God’s Blessings to the devotees through holy lights (harathi) and spoon full of holy water (theertham). In front of Venkateswara Sannidhanam, devotees also get direct Blessings from God’s Feet when the Priests place a silver crown with two symbolic feet (shathari) on the devotee’s head. Some prasadam (dry fruits) is also distributed to all the devotees.

Bhagavad-Gita (The sacred text of Hindus) Chapter 4, Verse 11 talks about worshiping the Lord in various forms of his manifestations. “In what so ever form, men worship me, in the same way do I full fill their desires”. Everyone follows my path.
In this temple one can see many Deities made up of granite and some are made up of panchalohas (five metals). A few of them are made up of marble. The granite vigrahas are permanently fixed in designated locations, they are called the ‘Moola vigrahas’. The metallic vigrahas can be taken around within the Temple as well as outside. These are called ‘Utsavamurthys’. The procession takes place by placing the Deities on top of the different vahanas (vehicle). Mooshika (Mouse) is the vehicle for Sri Maha Ganapati. Nandi (Bull) is for Siva-Parvati and Mayura (peacock) is for Sri Subrahmanya. Aadisesha (snake), and Garuda (Divine Bird) are the vahanas (vehicles) for Lord Vishnu. Gaja Vahana (Elephant) is Lord Rama’s vehicle. Such processions are scheduled on religiously significant days.

His brother Lakshmana is on the left. Lord Rama’s devotee is in far right of Lord Rama. He is called Anjaneya or Hanuman. There is a Temple for Hanuman Himself. Please move to number 17 of the floor plan. Worshiping Rama helps good family relations and character.

Here you see Sri Anjaneya, carrying a mountain in his hand. This is the sanjeeva parvatham that He brought from the Himalayas, which has reference in the Great Indian epic, Sri Ramayana. Hanuman worship leads us to attain strength and courage.

Going around Sri Anjaneya Temple, you can come to the Navagrahas. This is number 18 in the map. These are the nine planets, which, according to Hindu religion, have a significant influence on the life on earth. The Sun is in the center with Saturn behind and going in the clock-wise direction from Saturn are Ketu (the ascending planet), Jupiter, Mercury, Venus, Moon, Mars, and Rahu (the descending planet).
