INTRODUCTION TO PERSONAL FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

for Families and Individuals

This 6-session course will cover most of the common financial issues all of us face in our lives, questions such as:

- What to consider when financing a home
- How to manage retirement accounts: 401-K and IRAs
- How to invest so that your wealth grows: Mutual Funds, Bonds and Stocks
- How to protect your loved ones: Insurance, wills, and estate planning
- How to Save for Education Annuities, Taxes and many more topics

Course Objective: Participants gain enough knowledge and confidence to be able to make most of life's financial decisions on their own. The most important skill they will learn is how they can generate high returns and grow their wealth by understanding and managing risk.

What this course is and isn't: These will be highly interactive sessions where you will gain unbiased knowledge that you can put to use immediately to handle real-life financial situations. There will be no sales pitch or solicitation for insurance, no discussion of get-rich-quick schemes, or any kind of trading. The instructor is offering his time purely as a service to the community.

The Instructor: has worked for financial services companies, including Merrill Lynch and Oppenheimer Funds during most of his 30 year career. His interest in money management combined with the environment at these mutual fund companies helped him learn about all types of markets and instruments. He started investing his own money in 1984 and gained direct money management experience by investing in stocks, bonds, commodities, options and other market instruments. He has an MBA in Finance, and has CPA and CFA designations.
